PARALYSIS DEATH AT WESTERLY

Frank Larkin, 14, Had Been Ill for Over a Week—No Quarantine Necessary at Watch Hill—Auction of Bank Stock and Bank Books of Estate of Harriet J. Pendleton—Two Sharks Killed

It will be a happy day for all who use that Pawcatuck bridge when the official representatives of Westerly and Stonington get together, and improve the bridge conditions and end the patchwork of that very much used bridge.

Eugene B. Pendleton, auctioneer, acting for Albert P. Pendleton, administrator of the estate of Harriet J. Pendleton, sold bank stock and bank books in front of the town hall Monday morning to close the estate. Six shares of stock of the Washington Trust company were sold to Attorney Harry B. Agard for $250 a share, a total of $1,500. Another block of ten shares of the same stock was purchased by Richard J. Butler for $221 a share, or $2,210. Six shares of stock of the Ashaway National bank were sold to Albert P. Pendleton for $32 a share, a total of $192. Albert P. Pendleton also purchased three bank books of the Mechanics' Savings bank with total deposits of $95.33 for $18. The total receipts of the sale were $3,935.

Although it is the policy of the Rhode Island state board of health to confine quarantine regulations to premises where infantile paralysis prevails, or is suspected, and not to a whole city, town or village, so as to prevent free access to and from the state, still families are leaving Watch Hill, fearing that they will be quarantined, because there are a few cases of the disease in the town of Westerly. This action is entirely unnecessary, especially as Dr. Swinn, secretary of the state board, has given assurance that a general quarantine is unnecessary and is an injustice to the public, rather than a preventive of the spread of the disease. Due to the fact that the school seasons all over the east are to be delayed in opening, it was expected that the season at Watch Hill would be extended in consequence. But some summer residents take no stock in the old saw that goes something like this: "Better to bear the ill than have them fly to others we know not of."

Frank Larkin, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs.

Charles E. Larkin, died Monday noon at his home in No. 9 Crafts court of infantile paralysis and blood poisoning, being the second patient to die from the disease in Westerly, and the fourth including the territorial limit of Pawcatuck, just across the bridge, and within the jurisdiction of the Westerly board of health, and also one case at Watch Hill. Thus far there have been four deaths in nine reported cases. Dr. C. F. Condon, health officer of the town of Stonington, reported the death of the boy to the board of health of the town of Westerly. The boy was born in Pawcatuck, and was a year and a half old. He was taken to the hospital at Watch Hill, where he died.

There is general compliance with the request of Lewis Stanton, superintendent of health of the town of Westerly, on the part of parents in keeping their children under 16 years of age at home. In consequence very few children are on the streets of Westerly. The order of Dr. C. F. Condon, health officer of the town of Stonington in this respect is being strictly enforced in the village of Pawcatuck. All children under 16 are now barred from entering or leaving Pawcatuck. Dr. Condon says there was a case of infantile paralysis in Stonington borough several weeks ago, the victim being a Sheffield child from Pawcatuck, who was visiting in the borough. This case was given the most careful attention and made as good recovery as possible. There has been no spread of the disease from that case. Dr. Condon attributes this to the strict way in which the people of the borough complied with the orders of the health officer.

The Watch Hill Improvement society is to have a permanent home, a memorial to Mrs. Joseph H. Clark and Mrs. Jacob S. Burnett, to be given by their daughters, Mrs. Edward A. Newell and Miss Ethel Burnett, the former erecting the building and the latter donating the land. When the building is completed the property will be donated to the society and will be maintained by the society.

ed by the society. The site for the building is on the knoll in the rear of the House-on-the-Hill. The plans and specifications have been prepared by a Boston architect and the memorial building will be ready for occupancy in the season of 1917. It is expected that in the establishment of this home the improvement society will become a perpetual organization for the development of Watch Hill.

There is unusual activity at Watch Hill during the present season and the indications are that there will be much building at that popular resort during the coming winter. The Harris Chapman farm on the Shore road has been sold to a party very much interested in the development of Watch Hill. Rt. Rev. Samuel G. Babcock, suffragan bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, a native of Westerly, has sold the Dunes cottage and grounds on Everett avenue to John Irving Stoner of New York. Truman H. Newberry of Detroit, a former secretary of the navy, has purchased seven acres with a frontage of 750 feet on Ocean road from John M. Browning. R. B. Mellon of Pittsburgh has purchased the Sundance cottage with four acres of land from the Woodland Realty company. Mr. Mellon has also bought the land between Sunshine and the Koth-Corcoran cottages, Chautauque, Cedar Brae, from Postmaster Winslow N. York. The Frank V. Coy Real Estate agency has also sold Ridge End, one of the most palatial estates at Watch Hill, for A. Lowes Dickinson of London, England, to John S. Newberry of Detroit.

Local Laconics.

NORWICH TOWN
Hanover Pastor Preaches at First Church—Miss Minnie Schulman in Charge of Sheltering Arms Services—Junior C. E. Members Earn $17.

Rev. Herbert D. Rollason, pastor of the Hanover Congregational church, preached at the First Congregational church Sunday morning and at noon was in charge of Rev. J. O. Barrow's Bible class. He took for the sermon's text, Be not fashioned according to this world, but be ye transformed. Many wish to live for the best and highest, to do God's will, he began. In the rush and hurry we become perplexed and cannot decide what is God's will. It is better to test our beliefs when we do not know all about them. We cannot know exactly what God's will is for our lives but we can test what we think is His will.

Two principles in testing the will of God are before us: Resistance and Transformation. By these two forces man may come to be dominated by the life of Jesus. Our environment should not prevent our worshipping. A man who lives with the eternal, the imperishable, accepts his limitations and through them becomes great. In a world without moral struggle, with no resistance, we should find no chance of making a character. Moral resistance against the things that lead and retard our growth leads to strength and to transformation.

The moment we resist temptation that moment we are transformed. When we oppose evil and wrong our natures are changed and allied to the divine energies. Renew your covenant, set your heart on high and holy things tomorrow and become transformed day after day, so shall the future be assured. All we have to do is to know what is the good and acceptable and perfect will of God.

Miss Schulman at Sheltering Arms. The service at the Sheltering Arms Sunday afternoon was in charge of Miss Minnie Schulman now working under the Board of Health of Stonington. The first part of the hour was given to the singing of hymns by the Central Baptist church. After prayer and the reading of the 146 Psalm, Miss Schulman gave a brief but vivid account of her life, closing with a description of her present work as one of the five teachers among her countrymen in Cleveland, O., her personal help in over one hundred homes, and her methods in instructing classes in the large school established by the Baptist board.

The Sheltering Arms is one of the places that are very precious to me, she said. It is here that I first felt Christian influences. A stranger in a strange land, I came here for an operation on my eyes. I was born in Russia and came to America and to Norwich when fourteen years old. I had never heard the name of Jesus in Russia. I had looked forward to having schooling and was the happiest child in the school. I had what I had always wanted.
After a few months of school she was put to work. While working in a Norwich home she was told, she said, "The redemption story, how Jesus lived perfect life and then gave His life a ransom." In the Broadway Sunday school, in a joyous Christian home, in prayers offered for her, it was made plain to her to give her heart to Jesus and let Him come into her life.

A motto in the parlor of the Sheltering Arms reads, Christ is the Head of this House. It was this home that was the means of starting such a life work, and this alone would have made it and the services held here Sunday after Sunday worth all the faith, prayer, and the love of Christ's suffering ones and help put into it.

Memorial Mass.
A month's mind mass for Mrs. Ellen Condon was celebrated at 7:30 o'clock Monday morning by Rev. C. W. Brennan at Sacred Heart church. There was a large attendance. The choir sang and at the offertory Miss May Pouchon rendered O Meritum Passionis, and as a waiting hymn, There is a Beautiful Land on High.
